Early Melting of Snowpack Increases Probability of Summer Supplies Far Short of Needs, Lakes, River Low

Washington — Early melting of mountain snowpack is increasing the probability that the West will suffer this century's most severe summer water shortages, according to the U.S.
Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service.

Snow surveys conducted early this month by SCS indicate that this year's record-low snowpack already has deteriorated because of warm, dry weather during April. At many survey sites, snow that normally is 6 to 7 feet deep this time of year already has melted.

The unusually early snowmelt is being absorbed by dry soil instead of running off into rivers. Many rivers that provide critical irrigation water for western crops are expected to yield less runoff than at any time since record-keeping began in the late 1890's.

Snowpack accumulated in winter and spring usually provides about 70 percent of the western water supply during the year.

The time for spring rainstorms has passed, SCS says, and many reservoirs that normally are filled to capacity in May have less than adequate supplies for the approaching irrigation season.
Only frequent and heavy summer rains can avert widespread severe water shortages, according to the conservation agency.

EPA's Regs Differ As To Whose Goose Is Cooked

"Hang in there, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Your big brother agency is coming to the rescue — even if he has to bend his own regulations to do it."

So says Richard W. Owens, Chief administrator and secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, referring to an Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announcement that it is permitting the use of the outlawed
M-44 tube to eliminate an estimated 15 Arctic blue foxes that have been outwitting the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

vice (FWS) since 1974.

The "M-44 tube," explains Owens, is a sodium cyanide spring-loaded device "gun" widely used by farmers and others to control coyotes and other predators until the "coyote getter," as it is commonly called, was outlawed by the government in 1972.

According to an EPA news release, FWS has been trying since 1974 to reestablish the Aleutian Canada goose, an endangered species, on the remote Aleutian Island of Agattu.

Trouble is, it seems those pesky Arctic blue foxes like a goose dinner as well as anyone and have been eating up the birds as fast as FWS can plant them. FWS efforts to eliminate the fox by shooting or trapping failed.

"Now," says Owens, "EPA is going to give a team of four or five FWS agents up to 50 'M-44 tubes' to wage war on those 15 foxes between now and late August while still denying the use of the tubes to all but government trappers and a few state licensed livestock producers."

While the ban on the use of predator pesticides in federal park, wilderness and recreation areas is still in effect, a loophole in the 1972 presidential order permits EPA to make exemptions when an endangered species is threatened.

"Perhaps the time has come to declare sheep an endangered species," Owens says. "In the last 10 years the number of sheep and lambs on U.S. farms has declined 47 percent, and in 1974, the latest year for which U.S. Department of Agriculture figures are available, predators — primarily coyotes — cost consumers and sheepmen a total of $37 million."

Owens says that sheepmen and cattlemen too, have been fighting the coyote since the first domesticated herds of livestock began roaming the range. Until the "M-44 tube" and a poison called "1080" came into wide use on western ranges, the livestockmen seemed to be losing the battle.

"With the 'coyote getter' and '1080' as weapons the livestockmen have made inroads on the coyote population," says Owens. "Then EPA loved the boom and declared the use of the two tools illegal. Once again, the coyotes are in command of the range's many areas."

Meanwhile, livestock producers do not help but have some sympathy for those 15 wily, little Arctic blue foxes that successfully outfoxed the FWS for three long years, finally forcing it to call "big brother" for help.

However, from experience, we know that when they come up against the heavy artillery of that monolithic bureaucracy known as EPA, "Owens concludes, 'obviously, the day of the foxes of Agattu are numbered.'"

June 11, Brenham

Brenham — Dan Wendt, Bay City, has announced the Mid-Coast Santa Gertrudis Association will hold its annual Spring Sale here at 12 noon, on June 11.

This annual event features range conditioned, classified Santa Gertrudis, selling in large numbers. The sale is designed to make available to the commercial cowman, as well as the new purchased breeder, locally raised, pasture conditioned cattle.

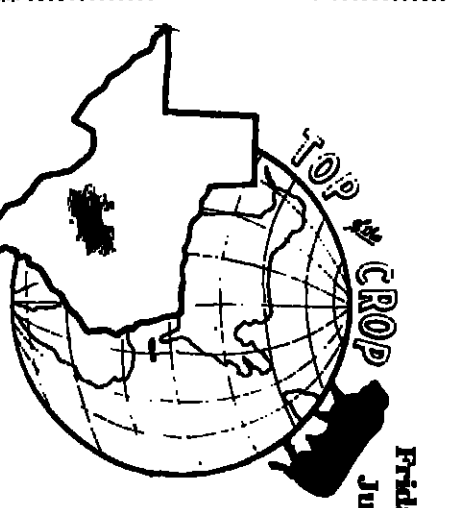

Twenty herd sires, and range bulls, and two hundred head of females will sell. Females will consist of bred cows, cows with calves and bred back, and open heifers.

All cattle sell as guaranteed breeders. Females two years old or older will either have a calf or be safe in calf. Dan Wendt, the sale chairman, points out that the Santa Gertrudis cow is an excellent mother cow, with outstanding calving ease and milking ability, while Santa Gertrudis bulls are noted for their ability to increase weaning weights through fast growing calves.

Food Editors Get Beef Story at Hall-Nance Ranch

The editors, representing Better Homes and Gardens, Redbook, Ladies Home Journal, the Washington Post and other publications, were hosted by L. E. Nance of Hall-Nance Ranch, who, along with the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, headquartered in Fort Worth. The journalists were in the area to attend the annual convention of the Food Marketing Institute in Dallas May 1-4.

Tours like this give cattlemen an opportunity to provide factual data to the people who tell the beef story to consumers," says Don C. King, TSCRA secretary general manager. TSCRA arranged the tour developed the program and provided press kit information and photographs for the editors.

Beginning with a ranch breakfast of beef steak, the group observed cattle on the registered Hereford outfit and received the "Beef Comes to Market" program. Nance, a TSCRA director, and Charles Balline, TSCRA administrative assistant, discussed the ranching business today, the cost of producing beef and the ways cattlemen are improving their product for consumers.

Other speakers were Dr. Richard McDonald of Texas Cattle Feeders Association, Amarillo; Dr. Frank Orts, meat specialist with Texas A&M

University; and Dr. Ernest D. Texas A&M. They explained the chain from feedyard to pack to beef grades and new cattle breeds, the outlook for beef prices and supplies. The editors, many of whom had never seen a live beef cow, repeated breeding and selection techniques, research and cholesterol.

Dates Set For Beef Referendum

"Cattle industry leaders have been waiting three years for these dates," says J. D. Sartwell of Houston, who is chairman of the Texas Beef Development Taskforce. "That's how long we have been working to get a self-help program aimed at stabilizing and improving the beef market."

The program, known as the Beef Research and Information Act, was put together by cattle industry leaders and approved by Congress last year. If approved by two-thirds of the cattlemen voting, it will authorize a uniform collection of 3/10 of 1% of the value on each animal sold.

The rate will raise $30 million to $40 million a year for beef research, promotion, consumer education and foreign market development, according to Sartwell. The funds will be administered by a 68-member Beef Board, comprised of cattlemen nominated by existing cattlemen's organizations.

We have just begun an extensive education program aimed at reaching every cattlemen in Texas," says Sartwell. "In addition to the 68-member Texas Beef Development Taskforce, representing beef and dairy organizations throughout the state, we have a county taskforce in each of Texas' 254 counties. We're all working to explain the merits of the program to cattlemen and encourage them to register and vote. Helping to spearhead the educational effort is the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, plus other cattlemen's organizations and general farm organizations."

throughout the United States. "Never has there been such a concerted effort among cattlemen to help themselves," continues Sartwell. ## Texas Simmental Sets Carcass Futurity Dec. 3

Stephenville — Texas Simmental Assn. is planning its first Texas Carcass Futurity and Field Day to be held Dec. 3 at Tarleton State University's farm off Highway 8 northeast of here, according to Bob Pitzer, Carcass Futurity and Field Day Committee chairman.

"The futurity is open to anyone interested in the carcass value of Simmental cattle, whether they are TSA members or not," Pitzer said.

"Everyone is welcome to come be a part of an educational experience that will be advantageous to every Simmental breeder and every livestock producer," Pitzer added.

Breeders and exhibitors may consign as many as four steers each to the carcass futurity. Deadline for nominating steers for the futurity is July 1, 1977, and a non-refundable fee of $20 per head is required.

Each carcass will be evaluated according to the ASA rules. Each steer must ## Brahmentals Hit Strong $228 Avg.

San Antonio — The first annual American Brahmental Assn. sale and workshop April 30 was highly successful with the sale grossing $84,000 on 69 lots of cattle for an average of $928. The sale was managed by Watson Cattle Service, Devine.

There were persons from five states in the crowd of more than 200 at the workshop conducted by Dr. John H. Farris, vice president of ABA.

Dr. Farris defined the pureblood Brahmental as "an animal of 100% Brahman, 50% Simmental, and 50% Brahman, with no more than 1/16th other blood breed, that has been inspected and passed the minimum standard of excellence set forth by the ABA, and has been recorded in the permanent registry of ABA."

Bidding was brisk in the sale with two bulls tied for top prices at $3,500 each, one a yearling half-Brahman, half-Simmental consigned by the Jack of Diamonds Ranch, Floresville, and purchased by Diamond Q Ranch owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. Osborn, Jr., San Antonio. The Diamond Q Ranch is a 17,000-acre spread near Hebbronville, and is one of the foundation breeders of Brahmental cattle. The ranch is managed by Charles Watson, San Antonio.

The co-high seller was a 3/4 Brahman, 1/4 Simmental bull consigned by Black Jack Division of Brumlow-Mosher Farms, that was purchased by Virgil Gierke, Maxwell, Texas, for his Ten Star Ranch. Ten Star was also volume buyer in the sale taking 11 head for $18,900.

A cow and calf pair consigned by Jack of Diamonds Ranch co-owned by Mrs. J. O. Brumlow and John H. Farris of Floresville, was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Richard King III of Corpus Christi for $2,700. The Kings were among the top buyers, purchasing several of the high selling females.

Kothmann, Pearland; Fishbaugh-Straus-Median Ranch, San Antonio; Rottler Ranch, Poth; Gene Gregory, Floresville; Double E Ranch, Weatherford; A. W. ## Simmental Steer Wins $1,000 For Lawton, Youth

Bozeman, Mt. — Young Kenneth Hoppe, a Lawton, Oklahoma FFA member, won $1,000 when his 84-blood Simmental steer placed first in a carcass competition conducted by the Oklahoma Simmental Association. The winning steer, one of some 800 entered in the 1977 Oklahoma 4-H and FFA Livestock Show, was Hoppe's first vocational agriculture project, according to Don Vanman, executive secretary of American Simmental Association. Bred by Harold Wilson, also of Lawton, the Hoppe steer was sired by purebred Simmental HWR Prince Achilles; this same sire had two other steers qualifying for the final round of this tough competition. Dam of the winner was a half blood Simmental cow. Hoppe's entry hung up a whopping ribeye of 17.38 square inches, had one-half inch of backfat, and graded Choice. American Simmental presents certificates of merit and $1,000 in cash to owners of the highest-scoring Simmental steer or sire group in carcass value per day of age competition, providing the contest meets requirements established by the Association.

Mayflower Simmental Sale Topped At $3,350

Corsicana, Texas — In the Mayflower Simmental Sale here May 7 to which cattle were consigned by Jack Walling, William T. Jarvis, Dale Fuller and O. D. Anderson, all of Hubbard, and W. H. Barsh, Waco, the 75 Ranches, Tyler, purchased the top selling animal, the bull Derocho, consigned by Anderson's Le Valle De Chenes for $3,350.

Anderson also consigned one of the two top selling female lots that went to Myrt Villow's Flying V Ranch, Decatur, for $1,100. Walling consigned the other $1,100 female, purchased by Rocking X Ranch, Catfield, Texas. Anderson had other females purchased for $950 and $875 by Judon Baumgardner, Dallas, one of the major buyers.

Blanton Cattle Co., Dallas, was top buyer, taking a total of 63 lots.

The latest merchandising technique seems to be the creation of the idea that the supply is short and raise the price at the same time.

P.S. Uncle Dunk notes where sister Carol Foreman, Carter's consumer advocate in USDA, says we need "increased nutrition education to inform consumers of the health and cost benefits of returning to basic, wholesome food grown on American farms." Jist to illustrate where she needs to get her head screwed on straight, she is opposed to the Beef Research & Information project it jist goes to show you. It looked like for a little while Texas parents might get a law passed to require th' Teachers to test young ones and see if they was learnin' staph like readin' & writin' & "rithmetic, but after th' House passed it a couple of times th' Education Lobby got enough of "em by the ear to stop it. Seems th' Educators think we ort to shovell th' money to them, and turn the kids over to them, and then git th' hell outta th' way. Dunk figures if Jimmy Carter's idee of lettin' voters register & vote right up to time th' polls close becomes law, then voters ort to come a lot cheaper. There's lotus wines and other folks that'll vote right in return for a short Democratic Beer! — Thansall, Brothall

ROOF COATINGS

Old roofs of composition shingles & old cedar shingles can be extended many years. Anyone can apply by brush. M.A. BLACK is a mineral asphalt that dries in 30 minutes. Being thin, it penetrates the cracks and can, by itself, stop most leaks. Not a tar. T.M. WHITE is a white coating developed especially to be brushed over the old roof. Either may be used without the other. Best recommendation is that the M.A. BLACK be applied and then two coats of T.M. WHITE. This very permanent repair, at a cost of less than a new roof. The white surface contributes much to cooling in summer. This is our 26th yr. Write for our catalog. We ship same day order is received.

Streamflow Forecast

United States Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service

Water Shortage

The outlook by state:

Arizona: Snowpack remains only in the high mountains. Streamflow is expected to be 20 to 40 percent of normal. Reservoir storage, however, is generally adequate.

California: The California Department of Water Resources forecasts the driest year on record. Snowpack on many watersheds already has melted, and reservoir storage is one-half of normal.

Colorado: Snowpack ranges from 10 to 30 percent of normal. Record low streamflow is expected.

Idaho: Snowpack is melting rapidly. Streamflow will range from 6 to 54 percent of normal. Critical water shortages are expected in many areas.

Montana: Snowpack on most watersheds is 20 to 45 percent of normal. With a few exceptions, streamflow will range from 25 to 60 percent of normal. Lake Tahoe is holding only one-fourth of its normal May supply. The lake, which usually rises 18 inches as snow melts, will rise less than 2 inches this year.

New Mexico: The Rio Grande River will yield 40 percent of its normal flow, near the record low. Streams flowing Oregon: Snowpack has completely melted on two-thirds of the state's watersheds; snowpack on the rest of the watersheds is no deeper than one-third of normal. Most streams will yield record-low flows.

Utah: Snowpack is only 9 percent of normal. Streamflow will range from 6 to 31 percent of normal, comparable to flows during the drought of 1954.

Washington: Snowpack ranges from 7 to 49 percent of normal. Because of dry April weather, streamflow now is forecast to range from 25 to 65 percent of normal.

Wyoming: Snowpack is as low as 10 percent of normal on some watersheds, and western Wyoming streams will yield 20 to 35 percent of their normal flow. Snowpack remains normal in the northern Big Horn Mountains, however, and water supplies there will be near normal.

In Alaska, SCS surveys indicate a heavy snowpack high in the south-central mountains, and runoff from that region will be above normal. However, runoff will be 65 to 80 percent of normal in some interior rivers.
